The Plans Filed in Manhattan Bureau Last Month Call for an Investment of $3,538, 000, Against $1.941,000 in December and $3,290,000 in January, 1907.

Building Superintendent Edward S. Murphy's report of the building operations in Manhattan for the first month of the new year, made public yesterday, presents evidence of a rally noticeably in tenement construction, which was brought practically to a standstill by the October panic. The records for the month as tabulated by James W. Spencer, statistician of the department, show that a greater investment of capital was provided for this year in the different classes of new construction than was the case in the first month of 1907, when widespread financial trouble was wholly unlooked for by most of those engaged in the building industry. The total projected investment for 1908 is $3,538,050 for 43 buildings, an increase of $247,650 over the investment of $3,290,400 in the 58 new buildings for which plans were filed in January, 1907.

A still better idea of the improvement in the present outlook is shown by comparing last month's record with the "low ebb" total of December, when the new building figures fell to a total of $1,941,150 capital investment, representing only twenty-nine building projects. As against this decreased activity this year shows a gain of $1,596,900 in estimated investment and of fourteen buildings in the total number planned.

Of the increased investment this year $1.250,000 is represented in the fifteen tenement houses projected last month, a majority of these being of the higher class of flat houses and elevator apartment houses. They indicate a revival of the activity of investors who engage in the better kind of speculative building and evidence a partial resumption of reality improvements on the nption of realty improvements on the resumption of realty improvements on the upper West Side.

In the first month of last year plans were filed for eight new tenement houses, the total cost of which was $1,350,000, while December last the record fell to a low park of five buildings costing an aggregate $\frac{5448,000}{,}$ and in November it sank to the of $448,000, and in November it sank to the phenomenally low mark of a single apartment house costing $175,000. These respective figures would indicate that the new year is well sustaining the promise held out by the activity of its opening week, particularly when it is recalled that on January 24, despite the blockade of general business by the heavy snowstorm, a department high record was made with plans for new construction work aggregating as for new construction work aggregating a cost of $1,620,000, and comprising a $1,000,000 commercial building, a $200,000 office build-cost of $1,620,000, and comprising a $1,000,000 commercial building, a $200,000 office building and half a dozen apartment houses costing $420,000. This total for exceeded that of any single stormy weather day in the history of the department.

Statistician Spencer's tabulation of gain in new construction work credited to the new year also includes the improvements planned by Charities Commissioner Hebbard for the Metropolitan Hospital on Blackwell's Island, embracing a tuberculosis pavilion, a pathological pavilion and three other edifices, including a home for the hospital staff, the group of five buildings representing a total investment of $575,000 and interesting as presumable evidence of an early resumption of municipal improvements, of which there was a complete cessation in December. With these improvements provided for the year begins ahead of its predecessor in the line of public work, last year's record being three public buildings projected, representing an investment of $184,000.

An increased investment is credited to the new year in the matter of loft and

An increased investment is credited to the new year in the matter of loft and store construction, January's data showing $1,430,000 set aside for four buildings—a larger amount of capital than was invested in all of the fifteen buildings of this class projected in January, 1907, which was $1,205,000. The single office building for which plans were filed on the snowy 24th ult., likewise, with its cost of $200,000, nearly equalled the combined investment of $203,-000 appropriated for the four office buildings projected in January last year.

The item of $37,000 included in last month's sabulation under the classification of stables and garages includes the improvement of a William Waldorf Astor plot on West Ninety-fourth street by the erection of a $25,000 garage, which was the first new building project recorded for the new Statistician Spencer's tables show that statistician Spencer's tables show that though January's alteration projects aggregated $534.870 as against $681,370 allotted to this class of improvement work in 1907, still the number of individual jobs allotted to this class of improvement work in 1907, still the number of individual jobs was larger, being 205, as compared with 184 in 1907. January last year was one of the record breakers in department annals so far as capital invested is concerned, the total reaching $3.748,765 for 283 different improvements. This large total was due chiefly, however, to the projected enlargement of the Metropolitan Life Building by the addition of its great forty-eight story tower, now well under way, and which, though really new construction work by itself, is classed in the department records as "alteration" work. Its estimated cost is given in Mr. Spencer's table as $2,000,000. January's alteration figures show a fair amount of activity in the matter of tenement house improvement and in the remodelling and enlargement of existing office, store and manufacturing buildings, while there was a noticeable gain this year over last in the matter of modernizing and improving hotel property and in improvements to churches and other public edifices.

JACKSON MUST TRY AGAIN If He Wants to Get His Traction Company Receivers' Fingers In.

The petition of the Jackson receivers appointed by Justice Seabury of the State Supreme Court for the New York City and Metropolitan street railway companies asking Judge Lacombe to direct the Federal receivers to turn over the property of the two companies to them was dismissed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday. Judge Lacombe in his memorandum says: "At the opening of the argument counsel for petitioners stated that some preliminary objection might be raised to this application in the theory that the petitioners have as yet only an appointment by order as temporary receivers, the actions in which they were appointed not having yet come to trial. The Court nevertheless heard argument on all the questions presented, expecting that if the objection were raised (as it subsequently was) it might possibly be disregarded as an unimportant technicality and the underlying questions might be discussed. More careful examination, however, presents the matter in a some-what different aspect. The petitioners have been appointed temporary re-ceivers in two separate actions brought by the people of the State of New York against two different corporations— one action against one corporation sucher York against two different corporations—one action against one corporation, another against the other. These actions are different not merely because the defendants are different and different testimony may have to be considered, but the causes of action themselves are different. * *

The relief prayed for is different; in one case it is the dissolution of the corporation, in the other that certain directors account ferfalleged delinquencies, be removed from office, &c.

*Presumably the State expects to prevail

"Presumably the State expects to prevail in both actions, but it is quite conceivable that it may prevail in one and be defeated in the other. Bearing in mind the mutual relations of these corporations and the rights and interests owned or claimed by others in the property now in custody of this Court, it is quite apparent that the situation which would be presented if the State should succeed in action No. 1 and fail in action No. 2 might be radically different from that presented if the State should fail in action No. 1 and succeed in action No. 2.

fail in action No. 1 and succeed in action No. 2.

"It would therefore seem to be most unwise to consider the underlying questions until by further action of the State courts it may be determined precisely what the situation is upon which this Court is to be asked to take action. The petition is, therefore, dismissed as being prematurely presented, without prejudice to its removal whenever petitioners may be so advised. The various papers may remain on file and in the event of a new application may be referred to without reproducing."
